Foreword

With this volume the Year Book celebrates its tenth anniversary, and so becomes a worthy tradition of the school.

May it long continue to record the aspirations, ideals, and achievements of succeeding classes and inspire them to greater effort in sustaining the fine spirit of loyalty and devotion which has ever been the pride and joy of Brookline High School.

The Class of 1932

DEDICATION

To

Dorothy Taft

and

Wilfred Harvey Ringer

Headmaster

Mr. Ringer was graduated from the Boston Latin School in 1903 and from Tufts College in 1908. The year following his graduation from Tufts, he studied advanced work in English at Harvard as a John Harvard Scholar. In 1915 he had an intensive three weeks' seminar in secondary school administration in Holyoke under the late Professor Alexander J. Inglis. Since that time he has been a member of numerous university extension courses and others offered by Syracuse, Harvard, and Boston Universities in the field of secondary education.

As a student Mr. Ringer rowed on the Boston Latin School crew during his last three years, and in his last year captained "E" Company of the second regiment of cadets. In Tufts he was a member of the Glee Club and editor of the "Weekly" during his last two years. He was an assistant in the English Department in his senior year.

Mr. Ringer's teaching experience includes one year as a teacher of English and History in the University School, Chicago, Illinois; one year as educational director at the Northwood Avenue Congregational Church, Detroit, and three years as teacher of English in the Academic High School, Auburn, New York, where he was in charge of junior and senior classes and public speaking; he also was assistant football coach, besides being coach of four championship track teams and assistant in Dramatics.

For four years, from 1914 to 1918, he was head of the English Department in the Holyoke, Massachusetts, High School where he reorganized the course in English from the sixth grade preparatory to the organization of the Junior High School system. While in Holyoke Mr. Ringer coached debating, helped organize the first summer high school, was a director in the Teachers' Association, and appeared as a speaker on problems of English before two county conventions.

From 1918 to 1920 Mr. Ringer was principal of the Leominster High School and from 1920 to 1931 was the principal of the Gloucester High School, which has an enrollment of about twelve hundred pupils. During Mr. Ringer's period of service in Gloucester, he served on five important state committees and for ten consecutive years conducted courses in public speaking for the business men of Gloucester under the auspices of university extension. Within the Gloucester High School some of his most important achievements were the reorganization of the curriculum and the addition of special equipment particularly in the science department. He organized a guidance department and an assembly program designed to train students for leadership. He did much to promote the spirit of service within the school, increased the number of college candidates, and improved the quality of the teachers' meetings.

In the school year now coming to an end Mr. Ringer has won the loyalty and sincere friendship of the entire student body and faculty by his high sense of fairness and consideration for everyone.

Willis Briggs Gifford

Mr. Gifford entered Brown University in 1919. Before being graduated, he taught for two years: first, in the High School in Thompson, Connecticut; the following year as principal of the Grammar School in Edgartown, Massachusetts. Being then able to return to college, he transferred his credits earned at Brown to the Rhode Island State College, from which he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science in 1926.

During his college years he participated in Varsity Track and was Captain of Varsity Football. He was also active in debating, in the student council, and in the Drama Club, serving as President of the latter organization.

Mr. Gifford's first position after graduation was that of teacher of Science in the Turners Falls High School. Being interested in administrative work, he accepted the principalship of the Norwell High School and later of the South Hadley High School where he remained until called to Brookline. He has done much professional work at the Harvard Graduate School of Education since 1927.

During Mr. Gifford's first year in Brookline High School, he has met the many perplexing problems, incident to his position, with courageous endeavor and sincere purpose to accomplish the best result for the individual and the school. His earnest efforts have gained for him high esteem and warm regard.

Elmer Case

With the retirement from teaching of Mr. Elmer Case, the Brookline High School will lose one of the "old guard" to whose professional skill, strength of character and devoted service its present proud position in large measure is due.

It was in January, 1901, that Mr. Case came here from the Lynn Classical High School to become Head of the Department of Mathematics. The position was said to demand a strict disciplinarian, a man of high scholastic attainments and a master of the art of inculcating habits of clear thinking, straight talking, and correct computation; in short, one eminently qualified to teach "the young idea to aim high and shoot straight" in word and deed. By nature, by training, and by experience, Mr. Case met these requirements perfectly. Precise in thought, direct of speech, steadfast and true in all relations of life, he has ever taught by example as well as by precept accuracy of statement and rectitude of conduct. Early in college he called attention to his special talent by winning in a written examination open to all members of his class the prize for excellence in mathematics. He was graduated with high honor from Brown University in the class of 1885, a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

The best wishes of the whole student body go with this instructor, affectionately called "Pa Case", as he returns to his birth place, Canton, Connecticut, to live in well-earned leisure, we trust, yet many happy years. Those who have been fortunate enough to sit long under his instruction or have established contact outside of the class room have come to know the warm heart that beats beneath the stern exterior and to appreciate the rugged honesty and sterling worth of the man as well as the outstanding characteristics of a distinguished teacher.

Mary Carrick Thurston

A visitor to our Teachers' Rest Room will see on the walls two paintings: one of a quaint New England street, peaceful and sunlit; the other of a fishing fleet at the dock, but heading out as if already anticipating adventurous days. These two paintings so different in subject but so like in their power to stimulate the imagination are the gift of a former member of the Faculty who was not only admired for her creative powers as an artist, but loved for her sweetness of nature and her devoted spirit of service.

Mrs. Thurston was born in Nashville, Tennessee. Her father was a northerner, but her mother belonged to a fine old Southern family; and the little girl Mary Carrick was brought up amid the aristocratic traditions of the Old South. Later she was brought to Massachusetts, where she went to school. As she quite early showed talent for drawing, she directed her course toward the old Normal Art School. Here she made a notable record. After graduation she taught art in the schools, first, of Natick then of Chelsea, then of Somerville.

In 1909 she married Charles Willis Thurston, himself an artist of promise. They met abroad and lived for some time in Paris.

In 1913 Mrs. Thurston came to be Director of Art in Brookline. Under her enthusiastic management, the work grew and developed in many interesting ways; and the accomplishment of the pupils in various lines of artistic creation was a constant wonder to those who passed by the Art Room from day to day.

Probably one reason Mrs. Thurston was so successful in stimulating her pupils to creative effort was because she herself was a practicing artist. She went each summer to Gloucester, or Marblehead, or Provincetown, or Europe to paint. In the winter she exhibited her work in various Boston galleries. She knew, then, not from theory but from experience the powerful joy of creating a beautiful thing.

It is a matter of grief to us that Mrs. Thurston felt that her health was not good enough for her to continue teaching with any satisfaction to herself. She retired in September 1931. In a sense, however, she has not retired, for the spirit of helpful co-operation, the desire for beauty, the enthusiasm for hard work which she established will be in evidence for a long time, a splendid tribute to her devotion to this school and her contribution to its growth.

President's Address

PARENTS, TEACHERS, FRIENDS:

To all of you assembled here, the Class of 1932 extends a cordial welcome. We are aware that whatever success has attended our earnest efforts in the past or will continue to accompany us in the future, is due to you, our parents, whose sympathetic love has been a beacon light to guide us on our way; to you, our teachers, whose unselfish sacrifice has made possible this hour of triumph; and to you, our friends, whose kindly interest has been a source of inspiration and encouragement.

It is not without a pang of regret that we leave these fond halls where we have passed the first milestone in our precipitous journey through life. Yet we depart with a joy born of the pleasure we have enjoyed here, an inspiration derived from the example of our illustrious predecessors, and a confidence gained from difficulty, struggle, and conquest.

The last brilliant color has faded from the field outside yet it has faded only to live forever in our fond memory. Soon you shall learn of the road we have travelled before, and of the road which lies stretching ahead. The learned attorney will make a judicial distribution of our funeral expenses and our effects. The orator will portray our outlook on life, while the poem and song will interpret in verse our ideals.

So let us join once more before we depart on our various ways to the cares and worries, the duties and responsibilities, and the pleasures of life.

JULIUS STARITA

Class Song

COME, raise voices in loud ecstasy,
This is the jubilee. Brookline,
Alma Mater, guide us on our way,
Amidst us every stay.
We leave our joys and our sorrows with thee,
Always maintaining thy virtuous decree.
In years to come, we'll not forget thee
Who taught us what to be.

We part with thee, Alma Mater dear,
Wishing you hope and cheer, Brookline.
Lead us, True Friend, through all stress and strife,
And through the School of Life.
Now the world beckons to give us a chance,
Your honor always we'll try to enhance.
Ever thanking thy good services,
Farewell to thee, Brookline.

PAUL RUTLEDGE

Class Oration

In a sense, this evening and our graduation in the near future mark a termination, the ending of our definite association with Brookline High School. Now we are leaving, some of us to face the world immediately and the rest to do so after a few years in college. Soon we all must make a decision about the future and what we expect from life. Happily, a conclusion can be easily reached. Everyone of us desires, with heart and soul, to be successful.

As citizens of America, it might be valuable to consider the prevailing idea in our country about success. There comes to mind a challenging statement which has been made on this subject: "The American people know how to make a living—none better, but they do not know how to live." Here is an opinion which strikes at the very fundamentals of American life. Can it be possible that our countrymen are regarded as successful, if they know how to earn money, whether or not they live a well-rounded life?

Unfortunately the answer is "yes." Success, according to American standards seems to be measured in terms of money. When, for example, a question is asked about a man's success, the answer is apt to be, "Yes, he earn $500 a week." Can we imagine in our practical country such a response as, "Yes, he has achieved true happiness, and lives a fine, full life." Not that we desire to belittle money, but to evaluate fairly other assets which are generally disregarded.

The average American and his mode of living seem capable of being greatly improved. At present, his time from morning until late afternoon is wholly occupied with business interests. The evenings are spent in planning how to increase his money-making power and how to make his business more profitable. His work, with the exception possibly of an occasional game of golf, is his sole interest in life. It is small wonder that upon retirement from the business world, the man is lost; his only interest is gone and has left his existence dry and worthless. This is only one example, but lives today are lacking in many respects, which, if remedied, would raise the standards of the country to a much higher plane.

In what ways could this lack in American life be met? For one thing, diversified interests should fill his spare time. Frequent attendance at the theater to see the worthwhile plays would give him an appreciation of the drama, and much pleasure because of skilled acting. The adoption of some fascinating hobby—the collection of rare first editions, clipper ships, prints, anything to suit his own taste, would be valuable. "There is no frigate like a book." Reading would open to him countless fields and would enrich his whole existence.

Above all, in the words of George Washington, "Cultivate . . . harmony with all." Here is the best way to acquire friends, who are always with us, to help us in need, to comfort us in affliction, and to give our lives a deeper, richer meaning. As Emerson said—"The way to have a friend is to be one." In the acquisition of this deeper and richer mode of living, lies true success.

We as a class will soon enter the business world. Is there any reason why our generation should not give America what she needs—that is, successful men and women who know how to live?

HODEE WALDSTEIN

To H. S.

BETWEEN the fingers of a wizened Time
Four slow round years have dropped upon our hearts,
Still warm because the Miser's fondling touch
Yet lingers, as the heat of daytime bides
When night has come. With faint reluctant thud
They fall, four burnished beads of precious gold
That shine 'mongst budding roses, morning-hued.

When crabbèd Age shall pluck those blooms full-blown,
Though withering petals shrivel in his grasp,
And dried stems rob the sharp-tongued thorns of sting,
His knotted hands shall find four golden beads
Amidst the gray ash of a by-gone glow,
Still gleaming, splendid as when first they fell,
Undimmed by passing years, unspoiled by life.

COROLA NASMYTH

Class History

MILTON LEVY

(Carol Nye and Morton Lee are seen zealously poring over ancient records in the High School Library in anticipation of American History College Boards.)

Carol: Well, that's enough research for these College Boards. Kepner's American History text with Bliss' "Full Annotations" ought to get us by.

Morton: For today let's do the questions regarding the administrations of Herbert Jacobs and Robert Hall.

C: Yes, those were the most famous years in history. 1928 through 1932 produced some of the greatest men of all time.

M: That generation was truly great, wasn't it? But what of the questions about the administrations?

C: Didn't Robert Hall serve three terms?

M: Yes, Herbert Jacobs was president in 1929 and Hall in '30, '31, and '32. I remember that because only Hoover and Hall have ever held that office for three terms.

C: Here's the first question that applies to that illustrious time: "Name the vice-presidents, secretaries of state and treasury."

M: That's easy. Here are the vice-presidents: David Levinson '29, Mary Clark '30, Carola Nasmyth '31, and Mary Clark '32. The secretary of state in '29 and Stanley Cohen, in '30 Carola Nasmyth, in '31 and '32 Dorothy Burt. Everett Morgan took care of the finances in '29, Sylvia Simmers in '30, Dorothea Lakson in '31, and George Kaplan in '32.

C: I remember—Kaplan was considered the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton.

M: Yes, he left us with the greatest deficit in our history. How's this one: "What two statesmen in the Council, representing the generation of '32, sponsored the Anti-Smoking Bill?"

C: I know that—Robert Hall and Herbert Jacobs.

M: That's right. Here's one more about Congress during those years: "Name the members elected in '30, '31, and '32."

C: Robert Hall served the three years, Stanley Cohen was a member in '30, Dorothea Lakson in '31, and Richard Holt in '32.

M: Here's another: "Who were the six most important justices on the Supreme Court bench?"

C: I can find that in Bliss. Here it is—Herbert Jacobs and Franklin Fox in '29, Richard Holt in '30, Mary Clark in '31, Paul Rutledge in '32, and Robert Hall in '30, '31, and '32. Isn't this a peculiar statement: "George Kaplan made more important decisions in 1932 than all the chief justices in the last generation." I'll ask you a question now: "Who were the great orators in the early decades of the 20th century?"

M: In 1929 Dorothea Lakson was generally accepted as the foremost orator of the day, as was Miriam Hurwitt the following year and Paul Rutledge in 1932. Other notables of this extraordinary generation were Cuthbert Richards, Jane Miller, Robert Munroe, Dexter Goulston, Anita Shmauk, Pauline Wolff, and Milton Levy.

C: Here's a required question: "Name at least 12 members of the Hall of Fame who were elected in 1931 and 1932.

M: Isn't that the year when there were so many famous people that . . .

C: Yes. That it was necessary to raise the standard from that time on.

M: Now to get back to the question. We have to list 12 members, is that right?

C: Yes, how many do you know?

M: Well, here goes. Robert Hall, Carola Nasymth, Hodee Waldstein, Miriam Hurwitt, Dorothea Lakson, Paul Rutledge, Esther Byer, Dorothy Burt, Ruth Friedman—I'm stuck. That's all I can do. You finish them.

C: Edith Popkin, Adelle Kelsey, and Jean MacMillan. Oh, it says here: "credit given for additional members named." I can add some more.

M: Go to it.

C: O.K. Milton Paisner, Stanley Cohen, Richard Holt, Mary Clark, Ruth Tischendorf, and Milton Levy. I think that's all.

M: But what about the ones elected in 1932?

C: I remember Betty Cusick. I'll look the rest up. Phyllis Jacobs, Martha Henderson, Davida Liberman, and Abbat Rosenberg.

M: Let's try another.

C: Well, let me see. "Mention at least one case of political opposition to the attorney-general of the United States and explain fully the nature of the opposition."

M: We'll take the case of Milton Paisner versus Maxwell Andler when the attorney-general was overwhelmingly defeated by Andler in the contest for attorney in 1932.

C: How about the last part: "Explain fully the nature of the opposition?"

M: We won't go into that now this one is safer: "What were the outstanding contributions of the generation of '32 to international debate and Olympics."

C: I can find the answer to the first part: "That generation created an international debate forum which trained the most distinguished diplomats of that epoch."

M: I have the second part: "In February 1932 a magnificent pageant was produced. It marked most appropriately the bicentenary celebration of the birthday of George Washington."

C: Other dramatic achievements were "The Youngest," "Grumpy," and "Phillipa Gets There." These were presented through the untiring efforts of prominent actors and actresses of that decade. Jean McMillan starred in 1930, as did Frances Ford, Anthony Dean, and Julian Brightman in '31.

M: Yes, and the next year there were Frances Ford, Miriam Hurwitt, Hodee Waldstein, Calhoun Ancrum, and Paul Rutledge.

C: "The Sagamore," the most up-to-date newspaper of this era was most efficiently edited and managed during these years. Now what about contributions of this era to Olympic sports?

M: From 1929 to 1932 in baseball there were Gleason, Kaplan, Daley, Quinn, Lee, McDonough, Gordon, and Lourie. In football there were Lourie, Rosenberg, Kaplan, Paisner, Daley, Lewis, Merolla, Kerins, Horn, McDonough, and Harvey. Cohen, Paisner, Lourie, and Hall starred in track. The contributions to swimming were made by Delano and Silverman while Hall, Rosenberg, Summer, Silverman, Warren, and Gutman played an important part in tennis.

C: Gladys Norris was the most talented hockey player during 1929. Afterwards Anne Delano and Elizabeth McGrail joined her in her achievements. Swimming was led by Florence Hattersley, Gladys Norris, and Natalie Fisher. Anne Delano and Gladys Norris were prominent in tennis while Anne Delano captained the Gym team. Well, that's that. At last we're finished.

M: Yes. By the way, what gift are we going to get for Mr. Kepner on his retirement?

C: I don't know. How much money have we collected?

M: Not much yet, but the old boy's very popular. His American history especially has carried many thousands through College Boards. I hope it'll take me through.

C: I'm sure it will. It's used throughout the whole United States.

M: Yes, he certainly is a genius, but what are we going to do about the present?

C: I know what I'm going to give him—a tie.

M: But the old Dean's pretty particular. You know the tradition is he has always been the most fastidious person on the faculty, and a tie's no gift for him, anyway.

C: And besides I'll bet he doesn't wear one under that long, white beard. As for the class gift let's suggest a series of new-style filing cabinets.

M: Oh, for the letters from his admirers?

Maxwell Andler

Last Will and Testament

Know all men by these presents, that we, the class of 1932, of the Brookline High School, in the Town of Brookline, and in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound mind and memory, except Louie Watson, whom we cannot vouch for, but knowing the uncertainty of this life, do hereby make, ordain, publish and declare this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking any and all wills heretofore made by us.

After the defraying of our just debt and funeral expenses, which we cannot avoid, we hereby give, devise and bequeath as follows:

First: We leave to Mr. Ringer and Mr. Gifford the satisfaction of knowing that they have successfully brought to a close their first year at the Brookline High School.

Second: We leave the office force and the faculty one year wiser in the deduction of the artful and ingenious excuses of erring students.

Third: We leave to Mr. Packard who is fond of machinery one plant seed guaranteed to grow into an electric plant if given care.

Fourth: Bob Hall leaves his position at the helm of the Senior Class to Roger Bernhardt who has had complete nautical training.

Fifth: David Aronson, affectionately known to his classmates as "Nosey," leaves his brother to fill his place in the managerial staff of the football team.

Sixth: Milton Paisner reluctantly leaves his captaining and all-round executive ability to any Junior conceited enough to attempt to reach such heights.

Seventh: Sam Lourie and George Kaplan leave their athletic attainments to Art Soderberg and Alan Swartz.

Eighth: We leave to the Baseball team Maxie Van Dam who has refused the magnificent offer of the Braves and will play another year for the Alma Mater.

Ninth: We leave to any harassed Junior one airtight gag to be used on George Mackey at will.

Tenth: To the lunchroom we leave the standard set by us on the Seventeenth of March when the orange and green forces were united over a bowl of Irish stew and Kreplach.

Eleventh: Dot Lakson leaves her pulchritude to Connie Southgate.

Twelfth: To all future assembly speakers including John Lally we leave twenty words, no more; we hope less.

Thirteenth: Tony Deane leaves his quavering baritone behind him, adding five years to his life.

Fourteenth: Pauline Seidel leaves one complete set of college stickers including one from Tulane to any Junior fortunate enough to own a car in this depression.

Fifteenth: Mr. Case, who has joined the class of 1932 in graduating from the Brookline High School leaves behind him not only the utmost respect of his fellow members of the faculty but also the deep devotion of his pupils to whom he was affectionately known as "Pa".

Sixteenth: Stanley Cohen of necessity must leave his Eleanor to sojourn another year within the sacred portals of the school.

Seventeenth: Anne Delano leaves her diversified athletic ability to Peggy Wilder.

Eighteenth: We leave to the Juniors whom we allowed to attend our weekly assemblies our seats in the auditorium and hope that they can do as much homework as we could in that period.

Nineteenth: Carola Nasmyth leaves her Sixteen A's and one B to Lewis K. Lappin. He needs all he can get.

Twentieth: We leave to Billy Lebowitch one tennis tournament, complete with trimmings to be used by and with the consent of Abbot Rosenberg.

Twenty-first: Buster Gutman leaves his unremovable coat of tan to anyone eligible for the sum of five lunch tickets. Norma Marcus is included in this deal for the added sum of three checks.

Twenty-second: Frances Ford leaves her ability behind the footlights to Martha Turner.

Twenty-third: Willie Lee leaves nine and one-half inches of his six feet five to Roger Bernhardt.

Twenty-fourth: We leave to the present Junior Class all our material possessions including the deficit in our treasury.

Twenty-fifth: Dick Holt leaves his good looks and winning ways to that red-headed woman slayer, Irving Z. Perkins.

Twenty-sixth: Paul Rutledge and Dick Holt leave the "Sagamore" in the capable hands of Roger Bernhardt and his assistants.

Twenty-seventh: By special request of the janitors we leave sixteen new floors in the new wing to be massaged with the new Fuller automatic sweeper.

Twenty-eighth: To Miss Bliss we leave the two following excuses for missing history exams. "I ate something that upset my stomach," or "I had a cold in my head."

Twenty-ninth: We leave the underclassmen the privilege of taking final exams which is denied to the seniors.

Thirtieth: Bob Munroe leaves one school bank rather low in funds, otherwise like new to anyone working his way through college.

Thirty-first: And last: We, the Class of 1932, leave now and forever the halls of the Brookline High School and as a record we present our achievements written in the archives of the school.

We hereby nominate and appoint as executor Mr. Jewett and request that he be exempt from giving any surety on his bond as such.

Signed,

THE CLASS OF 1932.

In testimony whereof, we, the Class of 1932 have signed, published and declared this to be our last will in the presence of the undersigned who at our request in our presence and in the presenc of each other have hereto subscribed their names as witnesses to said will.

Witnesses:

Another year has passed and the Class of 1933 moves on leaving behind enviable records in both scholastic and extra-curricula standings.

Important roles in football and other athletic activities drew from the endless source of talented material, the Junior Class.

Four members of the Class, in spite of the added requirements, reached the portals of the Honorary Society and were admitted to its coveted membership.

Dramatics and Prize Speaking claimed other members while some of the most prominent members of the Class took over the management of the Sagamore and helped to carry it through a most successful year. The Senior-Junior Prom furnished another opportunity for the Juniors to play an important part socially.

If past accomplishments are any criterion of the future, then the Junior Class is assured that next year will furnish a brilliant climax for all its achievements, and it eagerly looks forwards to its fulfillment.

On a certain September morning, the customary groups of boys and girls entered the portals of Brookline High School, to be known henceforth as the Class of 1935. It soon became evident that this was not to be "just another" Freshman class, for, as all good things do, it was bound to come out on top.

Three members of this Freshman class had the honor of being in Prize Speaking, two of whom received honorable mention. This is most unusual, and we shall expect much along this line. Also, three Freshmen were among the cast of the Scholarship Dramatic presentation, two having major roles.

In the athletic field the Freshmen have not been idle. One boy received his Varsity "B" in swimming, an almost unheard of honor, besides there is great promise in other lines of activity.

The girls of 1935 have been active in sports also, several having made the second varsity teams in various sports.

Therefore, keep your eye on this class, for "thar's promise in that thar class."

Captain of Marshals, MILTON PAISNER

The Teacher-Student Council, a truly democratic body consisting of eight teachers elected by the faculty, the four class presidents, four students elected by the marshals, the captain of the marshals and the dean of girls, seeks as its highest ideal to establish and encourage a spirit of hearty co-operation throughout the school. To achieve this end, the Council, in collaboration with the Head Master, has carried out a program of beneficial service to the school involving the improvement of the assembly periods, the preservation of the unity of the institution, the amelioration of the morale of the student body, and the maintenance of the high standards established by its reputation.

At the Massachusetts State Convention of Teacher-Student Councils held in February, at Springfield, Roger Bernhardt '33 was elected President for the coming year.

The Court of Justice is the judicial branch of the student government. It passes judgment on any infringements of the school regulations referred to it by the Headmaster, Captain of the Marshals, and the Teacher-Student Council.

The chief purpose of the court is to help the student in trouble, and to compensate him justly for his misdeed. Since he is tried before his fellow-students, he feels that he has received fair treatment, as these schoolfellows thoroughly understand his viewpoint. Any decision is subject to criticism by the Headmaster.

The Girls' League started this year with a membership of about seven hundred. The increase in membership shows very significantly the interest taken in the League whose purpose is to establish a spirit of good fellowship and loyalty among the girls of the school, and to inspire in each individual an interest in its activities.

The program of meetings began October 30, with a Halloween Party. Each person attending the party gave some vegetables or canned goods as admission. This food was given to the Brookline Friendly Society. Three acquaintance parties were given also in October which proved very successful in making new friends. In November a lively Thanksgiving Party won great acclaim as did the Christmas Party at which scrapbooks, rag rolls, and toys were made for the less fortunate children of the hospitals and Brookline Friendly Society. The Seniors took charge of a Supper Party in February. The lunch room was brightly decorated and an operatic version of "Macbeth" furnished much laughter. An Eighth Grade Party in March made many friends among the Freshmen girls of next year and members of the League.

One of the new activities of the League this year took the form of four mothers' teas, one being given by each class. These meetings proved to be very enlightening to both the girls and their mothers.

For the first time program cards outlining the programs for the entire year were presented by the League and proved to be very handy as well as helpful.

All committees, advisors, councilors, and home room representatives have generously co-operated to promote good fellowship in the school.

The purpose of the Honorary Society in the Brookline High School is to stimulate pupils to attain a higher grade of scholarship, especially to increase participation in athletic and non-athletic activities. In order to stimulate this spirit of scholastic excellence and altruistic service, points are given not only for superiority in scholarly pursuits, but also for recognition of admirable qualities of leadership and character.

Membership in the Honorary Society should be the goal of every student in the Brookline High School for it is the highest honor conferred on any member of the student body and is the supreme reward for service rendered.

Favorable reports may well be given by the Sagamore this year. More co-operation than ever before has been accorded the school newspaper, and because of this, the results have been most satisfactory. The staff has striven to give, and we believe, has succeeded in giving its readers advance news, concise articles, interesting chatter and comment, good editorials, and thrilling short stories. Brookline High School has a paper of which it can well be proud, not only for its material, but also for its promptness of publication, and uniform excellence of make-up.

The Sagamore has become even more a school project since it has been printed by our own Printing Department. Much credit is due Mr. Carl Smith of this department.

Mr. Harbour, Mr. Jewett, and Mr. Barnes, our Faculty advisors, have shown a keen understanding and helpfulness which have been very inspiring to the staff and without which it could never have been successful.

Many thanks to all concerned.

The proceeds of the performance go to the Boys' Scholarship Fund, from which college tuitions are paid each June for a certain number of boys graduating from the Senior Class. A Committee of the Faculty awards the scholarships presented at Graduation. The young men receiving this aid must be of good standing both in studies and deportment, and must have worked a part of the time during which they have attended High School.

Actual statistics gathered from the Class of 1930 and 1931 have gone on record to show the assistance this department has rendered parents, teachers, and students. All activities have been carried on with a single purpose—individual assistance. With no paid counselors to assist through definite assignments to particular individuals, the amount of detailed conference work has been more than the time and strength of one person could adequately cover. The results, however, have been most gratifying and the Director is conscious of a feeling of satisfaction that this Department has been able to be of service to so many.

The enthusiasm of our Headmaster, Mr. Ringer, and the staunch support of our Superintendent, Mr. Caverly, bids fair to establish definite progressive steps in the near future.

The Department hopes to enlarge its activities, to enrich its possibilities, and to increase its field of service.

These hopes are certain of realization because of the loyal co-operation the Department receives from every teacher in the Brookline School System.

The Library Staff consists of thirty-one girls who volunteer to serve in the Library at least one period a week.

During Book Week Russell Gordon Carter, author of "King's Spurs" spoke at assemblies. At the upper class assembly the artist who illustrated the book, Leo O'Donnell, was present. His original drawings were on exhibition, having been lent by the publishers, Little, Brown & Company. Miss Walsh of Houghton, Mifflin Company, who presented to the Library a copy of "Flood Fighters," attended a tea at which pupils from the French, Spanish and German departments served in costume.

Among the other enjoyable occasions, were a theatre party to see "Good Companions," a visit to the Art Museum to see the Washington exhibit, a Valentine, and a May Day party.

Every effort has been made this year to insure a successful and instructive term for the members of the Club. Large attendance at meetings has shown interest and enjoyment of those studying French.

To add power in self-expression in French, lectures have been given at different meetings by pupils themselves. Talks illustrated with slides, given in clear and concise French, have demonstrated the ability of the students to speak the language fluently and well. The excellence of the French Department shows itself in the performances of the French Club members.

Two visitors have provided much instructive entertainment for the Club. Mr. Wallace Fowlie '26, now instructor of French at Harvard, charmed the members at one meeting with his French games and riddles. M. Ernest Perrin of the New England Conservatory gave unforgettable readings of several of Daudet's work in his own inimitable manner. Members of our own French Department have also contributed a great deal to the programs of Le Cercle Français.

Since this is the tenth anniversary of the Spanish Club it seems appropriate to mention a few of the outstanding events in its history.

Three public performances have been given by the Club: namely, "Patria Chica," a musical comedy and the first to be presented in Brookline High School; "Publa de las Mujeres," a play by the Quintero brothers; and "La Morisca," another typically Spanish play. Every second year the Club has organized a masquerade ball to which the other modern language clubs have been invited. Its last meeting has always been a picnic, enjoyed immensely by all.

One of the enjoyable events of this year was a banquet at which Mr. Caverly, Mr. Ringer, and Miss Wood honored the Club by their presence. Spanish bridge became a part of the program this year and at the March meeting a five-table bridge was held. At one of the meetings, three one-act plays were given by Miss Adams' junior and senior classes, and by Miss Meier's sophomore class.

This year (1931-1932) with its big increase in membership has been one of progress as well as enjoyment because every member has contributed to the success of the club.

The German Club has brought to a close an exceedingly enjoyable year. At the Christmas meeting the play, "Der Knopf" by Julius Rosen was presented. The members of the cast were Ruth Friedman, Norma Marcus, Calhoun Ancrum, and George Hartstone. At the Spring meeting another play was presented. The members of the cast of "Wie Macht Man's in Amerika" were Marjorie Frank, Marion Phillips, Ruth Wolf, Gordon McAleer, Sherman Rose, and Paul Silbert. An enjoyable meeting in celebration of Goethe's anniversary concluded the Club's activities for the year.

Twenty-five members composed the Club this year. Pupils who are passing in their daily work are eligible for membership.

Several meetings were held during the year, one in which three college girls, past students of Brookline High School, spoke on home economic opportunities in their schools. At the April meeting a lecture and demonstration were given on newest electrical cooking appliances. The May meeting was a party held in the Girls' League room where a jolly time was enjoyed by all.

The first year of the Girls' Debating Club was a very successful one. The club started with only a few girls but increased its membership to twenty-three.

A debate of interest to everyone was held at each meeting. All the members took active part in the debating and the work was both beneficial and interesting.

It is the expressed wish of the Senior members that the club will continue and grow in numbers so that it can meet other clubs in debate.

The troop has had a very successful year with a membership of twenty-seven. Some are to receive the first class, others, the second class badge.

There were several hikes in the fall; second class tests were passed in fire and cooking and first class campcraft was done. In spring there was an overnight hike at Cedar Hill and the scouts had a very enjoyable time.

The troop has contributed much to community service. They have aided in the Emergency Room during their study periods. At troop meetings the scouts have made garments which were distributed by the Brookline Welfare Committee. In the fall several scrapbooks were made for the children in the hospitals. They gave much assistance at the Christmas party when toys were made for needy children. At the presentation of "Winnie the Pooh" by the Brookline Girl Scouts in March, the troop had charge of the ushering with Helene Dawson and Florence Dawson as head ushers.

Three girls from this troop were delegates at the annual conference in Lynn. Barbara Knapp was the leader of a discussion group and the other delegates were Betty Cusick and Marie Murphy.

For the greater part of this year, the guiding spirit of the Bank, Miss Barnard, has been on leave of absence. We have felt her loss very keenly, but we have carried on as best we could.

Another year has been added to the life of our Bank, which has made it even more an established institution of our school. Those who have taken advantage of its opportunities have found it a great convenience and time-saver. The lesson of thrift has been well-taught in our school and should be taught in every school in the country. Brookline High School is a pioneer in this field of learning, of which we are very proud.

DELEGATES TO METROPOLITAN CHAPTER

CAROLA NASMYTH, Senior Delegate WARREN FOX, Junior Delegate

MISS SMITH, Faculty Advisor

The Junior Red Cross has just completed its most successful year of service. With the proceeds of the annual roll call, gifts were made to the soldiers and sailors in hospitals at Christmas time, and money was sent to the national fund for children. Glasses have been purchased for many little children unable to purchase them for themselves. Toys were collected, repaired, painted, and distributed to little children. Over one thousand surgical dressings were prepared and given to a hospital.

A complete course in "First Aid", conducted by Mr. Johnson of the Red Cross, Thursday afternoons in March, April, and May, engaged the attention of more than twenty volunteers who will receive senior certificates as a result of their work.

Warren Fox was sent to Washington as our delegate to the National Convention of the Junior Red Cross, where many new ideas were suggested. Next year promises to be another for faithful endeavor and successful accomplishment.

Although lacking in veterans B. H. S. was represented on the gridiron by a remarkable team welded together under the excellent workmanship of Coach Fitzgerald, who labored against innumerable hardships and handicaps throughout the season, raised the morale of the boys to an unbelievable height, and was almost directly responsible for the outstanding success in the Newton game.

The season may be considered a successful one, for in the last two games two of the most powerful teams in the state were held to scoreless ties. On Thanksgiving morning the boys withstood the attacks of the stalwart Newton team for four thrilling quarters, and emerged with a moral victory, for this worthy foe had been defeated but once during the season.

Starting with the very great handicap from the loss of three All-Champion swimmers who had been the backbone of the Brookline High School teams for the previous two years, the 1932 swimming squad developed into a very well-balanced organization. Its defeats were many, the greatest and most regretted being the Meehan Meet, which for nine long years had been an outstanding victory for Brookline High School swimmers. These experiences have served to bring out the best in the participants, as their leadership shows.

Brookline High School may well be proud of the accomplishments of Frederick Wiggin, champion back-stroke swimmer, of William Murray, champion of free-style, and Robert Malone, the leader in diving.

The indoor season this year was unusually successful. The big dual meet with Newton was won by a score of 77½ to 76½, after several years of defeat. In the interscholastic meets, the team started slowly with the Northeastern, in which it ranked sixth, but rose to second place at Andover, being defeated by Boston English. It again placed well up in competition with the Boston Athletic Association, and ended the season almost winning the State Meet at Boston Garden, where it was again beaten by Boston English, though only by a half point.

Only one meet, the Worcester Polytechnic Interscholastics has taken place. Here the Team stood fifth.

The Brookline High School Tennis Team, under the very able guidance of Coach Barnes, developed into one of the strongest in years. Captained by Bob Hall and managed by Abbot Rosenberg, both of whom were lettermen from last season, the team has a good start. Two more lettermen, David Summer and Robert Warren added to its strength.

A tournament at Dean Road courts, the first competition of its kind ever to be finished completely in Brookline, discovered at least three promising players, Billy Lebowich, who won the tournament, Bill Ittman, a Sophomore who showed remarkable ability, and Sam Gutman, Paul Silbert and Lewis Lappin finished well up in the tourney ranks.

With such a team as this success was assured.

The Girls' Gym Team has had a very successful year with thirty-five girls faithfully attending the meetings of the class which were held every Monday. On the first Monday of the season the Captains of the class teams were elected. The teams were made up of members from each class and all meets were held between these teams.

The girls mastered many a stunt on the various pieces of apparatus, and several became very skillful in their performances.

The Senior girls are regretting that the season is over, while the underclassmen are looking forward to many happy afternoons in the future in practice with the gym teams.

MISS PIERCE, MISS BROWER, Coaches

Under the careful tutelage of our new coach, Miss Pierce, left fullback of the All-Boston Senior Field Hockey, and Miss Brower, the girls' field hockey team came through a strenuous season undefeated.

Instead of inter-class series this year, four teams, consisting of members of all four classes, were assembled by Miss Pierce. They were captained by Gladys Norris '32, Mary Taylor '33, Deborah Kinsman '34, and Ellen Dowling '34, whose team won.

The girls showed great improvement and with a nucleus of six veterans, we hope to maintain this undefeated record next year.

Brookline placed three girls on the All-Boston Junior Field Hockey Team: Anne Delano for the second time, Gladys Norris and Elizabeth McGrail for the first time.

Elizabeth Howard was elected captain for next year and Ellen Dowling, manager.

Another successful year has been enjoyed by the Girls' Swimming Team. In addition to a Varsity Team, three class teams were chosen and an interclass meet was held at the last swimming period. The Seniors scored an overwhelming victory with the Sophomores second and the Freshmen third.

The Varsity Team participated in two play days, one with the Pawtucket High School girls and the other with the Somerville High School team. The Captain and Manager of the home team officiated at both meets.

This new form of competition, which is becoming more and more popular throughout the country, has proved very successful in developing a fine spirit of friendliness between schools.

Previous to choosing the regular class teams a tournament was held during March in which the Seniors and Juniors competed. The match resulted in a victory for the Seniors whose teams constantly overpowered those of the Juniors. A similar tournament was held for the remaining class teams in which the Sophomores were victorious.

SCHEDULE

May 5, Malden at Brookline
May 9, Winchester at Winchester
May 19, Lasell at Lasell
May 20, Newton at Brookline

Practice has been carried on Tuesdays throughout the season under the superior guidance of Mrs. Wightman.

The Team consisted of four veterans from last year plus some very promising new candidates who improved steadily during the period of practice.

MISS KELLEY, Faculty Advisor

Although a smaller number of girls has joined the Club this year, there have been three classes of riders, beginners, intermediates, and advanced, each group riding at a different hour. With the approach of spring the girls who enjoy the refreshing restfulness of this sport have had much pleasure in riding along the trails of the beautiful Blue Hills on Mondays and Wednesdays. It has been a thrilling experience to everyone.

Archery

During the fall and spring archery was one of the most popular of the Girls' sports. This was indicated by the necessity for having two days a week devoted to this activity alone. On one day the Freshmen and Sophomores were instructed, and on the other, the Juniors and Seniors. Each group is divided into teams which consist of an even number of girls, each provided with three arrows and a bow. These teams compete with each other.

One does not have to be an athlete in order to enjoy this sport, but she does need a keen eye and a steady hand. Both of these requisites can be quite rapidly developed. Much progress has been shown since the first trials, and this activity promises well for the future.

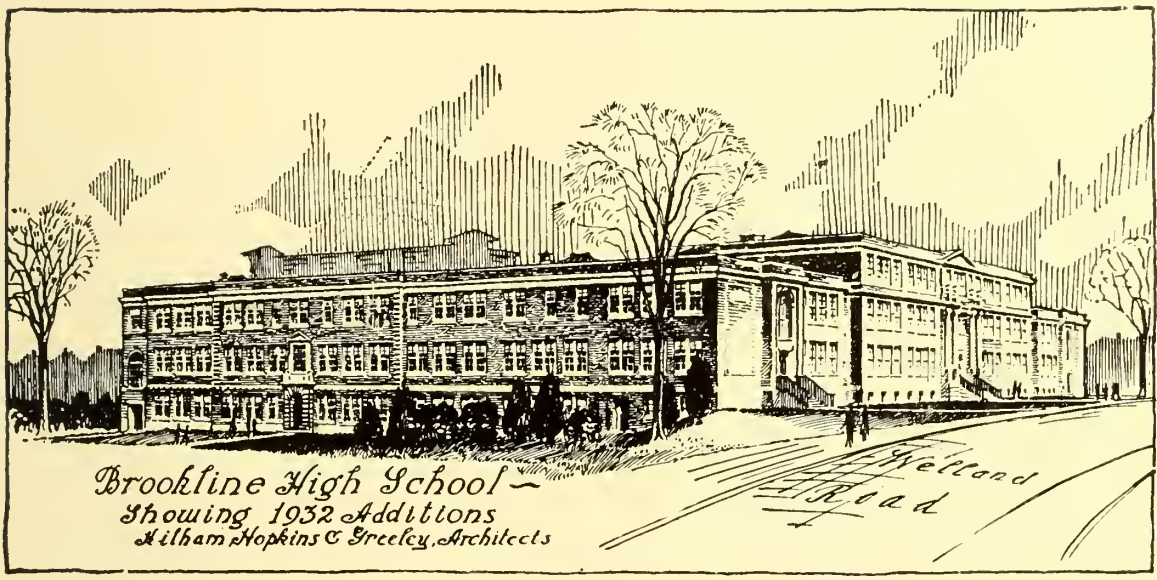
The New Unit



The Brookline High School, when completed in accordance with the plans of the architects, will present an imposing appearance as can readily be seen from the accompanying sketch. The Physical Building, the next unit to be called for, will complete the quadrangle.

The second unit is being built according to schedule and will be ready for occupancy by September third. The ground floor of this unit will supply eight classrooms, a janitor's room, and three club rooms for "student activities." The second floor will furnish thirteen classrooms, an office for the Head of the Social Science Department, a Rest room, and a Faculty room. The third floor will house the Science Department with its eight laboratories arranged in pairs, two for Physics, two for Chemistry, two for Biology, and two for General Science, with their accompanying storerooms, A Visual Education room, a Workshop, a Dynamo room, a Dark room, and an office for the Head of the Department.

The corridors upon this floor will be fitted with special cases, set into the wall and lighted by electricity, for the display of birds, minerals, astronomical transparencies, lantern slides, and other interesting material, while an arrow moving over a dial on the ceiling overhead, will show the ever-changing direction of the wind. Lecture room and laboratory have been combined in every case in order that each teacher may have an entire unit to himself, though the Visual Education room, before referred to, supplies the place of an independent lecture room to a limited extent.

On the roof is a sun-parlor reached by a staircase from the Science corridor—to be connected with the proposed gymnasium later.

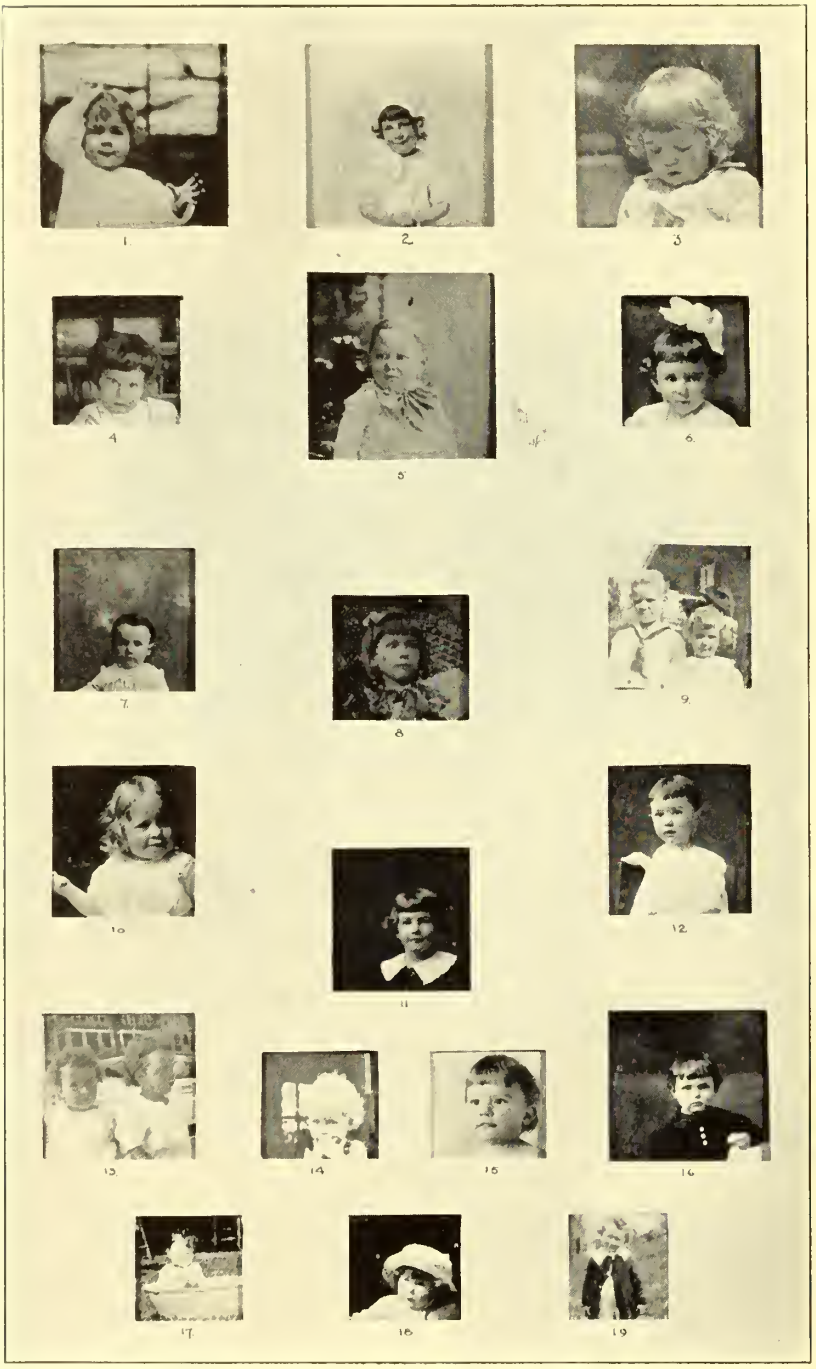
CHEER LEADERS

When We Were Very Young



When We Were Very Young

Key to When We Were Very Young

1. Carola Nasmyth—Notice the raised hand, a characteristic attitude of Miss Nasmyth's.
2. Madeleine L'Engle—Most women are happy in a new hat; but Babe doesn't seem to be, though she is trying hard.
3. Jean MacMillan—Why look down, Jean, with prospects so bright?
4. Ruth Friedman—Always an art-ful child.
5. Mr. Ringer—Couldn't you go for that tie?
6. Frances Gasster—Watch out that you don't hurt someone with that great big bow.
7. Mr. Jewett when Mother was his Guidance Department.
8. Mr. Hollingworth—A Follies' beauty in the rough—it's a shame he decided to teach Chemistry.
9. George and Anne Delano—And we've never seen them so close together since. By the way, here's shattering your illusion that George's haircut is a new invention.
10. Dorothea Lakson with her smile that has weakened any number of the so-called stronger sex.
11. James Mason—Except for that bob, Jim is still the same.
12. Miriam Kusenetz—We like you as you are now a lot better, if you don't mind.
13. Alma and Anita Schmauk—'32's only twins. That's why we made them number 13. We knew they wouldn't mind sharing the burden.
14. Mary Margaret Shanahan—You don't know it, but this "Model A" child is sitting on a "Model T" Ford.
15. Esther Byer—Serenity has always been her strong point.
16. George Kaplan meting out justice.
17. Celia Potter posing as an Earl Carroll beauty.
18. Felice Kornfeld—That's some hat! It will probably be in style next year.
19. Paul Rutledge—Coy little thing.
20. Miss Poland—As she says, there's no chance of mistaken identity here.
21. Florence King—Note the determined look.
22. Miss Sawyer before her present worries as Dean of Girls overwhelmed her.
23. Ruth Tischendorf—Tischie would even give you two bites if you asked her. She's like that.
24. Barbara Mitchell—The original Kewpie doll.
25. Katharine Forbes—Something (or someone) is absorbing her attention.
26. Pauline Seidel—She's asking you if you'll take a pick-up in her Chrysler.
27. Harry Mahakaian—Has fate given you a tough break, Harry?
28. David Aronson—The skin you love to touch.
29. Ethel Mills before she knew she was posing for the Year Book.
30. Mr. Gifford—Our Sub-Master representing Vanity at its Fairest.
31. Eva Hahn—What are you waiting for, Eva?
32. Ruth Markell before she had learned to smile.
33. This, gentle readers, is a tin type. It is Miss Taft.
34. This, gentle readers, is also a tin type. It is a hat with Miss Pease.
35. Pauline Wolff—It's a pity you can't see the lovely feet this child had.
36. Hodee Waldstein—Look out! Despite the angelic look, there's a brain behind those curls.
37. Miss Parker stepped between Hodee and Miriam to prevent them from pulling each other's hair.
38. Miriam Hurwitt—Notice the bright expression around the nose and the rather timid first appearance of her characteristic red locks.
